ACT RESPECTING HEALTH AND SOCIAL SERVICES INFORMATION

27. An heir, a successor, a legatee by particular title or a liquidator of the succession of a deceased person, or a person designated by a deceased person as a beneficiary of life insurance or of a death benefit, has the right to be informed of the existence of and to have access to information concerning the deceased person that is held by a body, provided it is necessary for the exercise of their rights and obligations in that capacity. (...)

28. The spouse or close relative of a deceased person has the right to be informed of the existence of and to have access to information concerning the person where the information could help them in their grieving process, unless the deceased person refused access to that information under subparagraph 1 of the first paragraph of section 8.

29. The spouse, a direct ascendant or a direct descendant of a deceased person has the right to be informed of the existence of and to have access to information relating to the cause of the person's death that is held by a body, unless the deceased person refused access to the information under subparagraph 2 of the first paragraph of section 8.

30. Persons genetically related to a deceased person have the right to be informed of the existence of and to have access to information concerning the deceased person that is held by a body, provided it is necessary for verifying the existence of a genetic or hereditary disease. The right may be exercised even if the deceased person refused access to information concerning the cause of his or her death under subparagraph 2 of the first paragraph of section 8.
